—A force of men cleaning up the alleys for the city under the employ of Servicemen L. E. Miller cut down the irises, marigolds, and other flowers planted just outside the fence for a border in the alleyway between the houses occupied by Mrs. N. G. Spangler and Mrs. Loring Evans. Both women have spent all fall and spring beautifying the fence on their property and after all their labor of love along comes a bunch of numb skulls who do not know the difference between weeds and flowers and cut them low with a scythe. If you don't think two women are disgusted, just mention it to either of the women interested.

IT'S STILL WARM

ENOUGH IN HOUSTON

HOUSTON, TEXAS, June 28.—The weather forecaster, perhaps the most unpopular person hereabouts, offered no solace to the convention delegates today.

He said the same old heat—it was 90 yesterday, both in and out of the shade—would prevail today.

E. J. Rife, N. Scioto-st., suffered a fracture of the left ankle Wednesday night in a fall at his home. Dr. Howard Jones reduced the fracture.

REPUBLICANS OF OHIO ARE IN SESSION

Candidates For Governor and U. S. Senator Occupy Attention Today.

COLUMBUS, June 28.—Candidates for governor and for U. S. senator were to occupy the major attention of the Republican state convention here today at the opening session of the delegates at Memorial hall.

The three leading contenders for the governorship nomination, Atty. Gen. Edward C. Turner, Congressman James T. Begg and Myers Y. Cooper, are to deliver thirty-minute addresses after the convening of the convention at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Following the governorship candidates, the contenders for the nomination for short term as U. S. senator, are scheduled for short speeches.

Departing from the usual custom, there will be no "keynote" speech, the candidates for nominations taking the place of the party "key note."

The chief work of the convention, adoption of the party's state platform and the selection of its 24 candidates for president electors, will be accomplished at the concluding session Friday morning.

District delegations will hold caucuses and select their candidates for electors this afternoon, prior to the opening of the convention. The district selections will be confirmed and two electors-at-large chosen Friday by the convention as a whole.

Drafting of the state platform will be accomplished through the resolutions committee, composed of twenty-two members representing the congressional districts of the state. The draft agreed upon by this body will be submitted to the convention for approval Friday morning.

Only prospect of a fight in the convention appeared in connection with the platform, following announcement at Atty. Gen. Turner that he intended to offer a proposed platform for adoption.

Turner's platform is expected to meet vigorous opposition because of planks it contains relative to prohibition enforcement, outlawing of paid lobbyists, repeal of the peace law, limiting of campaign expenditures, abolishment of township offices and tax classification.

Fred W. Warner, Marion, chairman of the Republican state central committee, will preside at the opening of the convention as temporary chairman. Col. William H. Duffy, Columbus, will be secretary, and Tiffin Gilmore, Columbus, sergeant-at-arms.

Republican men's Glee club will sing at today's convention session and the Women's Glee club at Friday morning's session.

Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs, unopposed for re-nomination for the regular term as senator, is the only scheduled speaker at the Friday morning session.

The convention is expected to end by noon Friday.

CHARLES MASON OPERATED UPON

Charles Mason, of Mason Bros. underwent an operation Wednesday afternoon at Dr. Crile's hospital in Cleveland. Dr. Dinsmore was the operating surgeon.

Mrs. Mason, who is with her husband at the hospital, called friends in Circleville Wednesday evening and said that his condition was satisfactory.

BATIFIES OPIN MEET

GENEVA, June 28.—Canada today ratified the League of Nations Opium convention, and thus made it possible for the convention to become operative next September, as but one more ratification was needed.

DOESN'T THIS PROVE IT?

That Circleville has one of the highest water rates, if not the highest, in the state of Ohio, is evident from the following table of rates:

City	Rate Per 1000 Gal.	Dec. 31, 1919.	Dec. 31, 1922	Dec. 1925
Amherst		37½	37½	.50
Ashtabula		.20	.20	.20
Bowling Green		—	—	.55
Bucyrus		.44	.44	.14
Chillicothe		.20	.20	33 1-3
CIRCLEVILLE		.30	.42	.95
Delaware		.40	.50	.60

Jackson		.35	.30	.65
London		.25	.40	.40
Marion		.25	.32½	.32½
Massillon		—	.29	37 1-3
Meigs		.50	.65	.75
Shelby		.50	.67	.67
Tiffin		.28	.53 1-3	.53 1-3
Washington C. H.		.25	.30	.30

These cities above were selected because theirs are representative water companies ranging from 700 to 6,000 in number of consumers.

NOW, IS CIRCLEVILLE'S WATER RATE TOO HIGH?

NEW ROTARIANS TAKE OFFICES; DELEGATES TALK

Last Meeting of Year For Old Officers Held On Thursday Noon.

The old gave way to the new when the Rotary club met Thursday noon at the Boggs hotel at 11:45 a.m.

President Clark Will, who has ably served the club as its head for the past year, tendered the gavel to Harley Colwell, newly elected president who assumed the reins as the club's high school. Other officers who were installed were: Meeker Terwilliger, vice-president; John C. Goeller, Jr., secretary; John Ryan, treasurer; directors, Frank Barnhill and Tom Gilliland.

Prior to the installation, Harley Colwell and Wilson Cellar, who attended the international Rotarian convention at Minneapolis last week, told entertainingly of the big session which was attended by delegates from all over the world. Italy, it was said, won the huge cup for having the highest per cent of members present at the convention.

Both said that Minneapolis displayed wonderful hospitality in entertaining the visiting Rotarians.

Rotarian Moore made a short talk in which he stated that he thought the Circleville Rotary members ought to donate $10 each for the crippled children work at the Barney Community Center. It is proposed to have all Rotarians in this district do likewise so that the work can be promulgated more satisfactorily.

Most of the club men voted to hold a meeting at the Barney Center and see the work being done before taking action on the donation. The date for the meeting will be set soon.

PROBE SCHOOL'S COAL PURCHASES

COLUMBUS, June 28.—Investigation of alleged financial irregularities involving a trustee of Ohio University, at Athens, was prospect today, following complaints laid before Governor Donahoe Wednesday.

Delegation of citizens, conferring with the governor, laid before him data purporting to show that the university has illegally purchased coal from companies of which a trustee was an officer and had bought real-estate from a former trustee at a price alleged to have been excessive.

ATTEND FUNERAL

Those from Circleville who attended the funeral of Mrs. Catherine Goff Williamson in Amanda Wednesday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Parrett, Mr. Mack Parrett, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Plum, Mrs. W. S. Gearhart and Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Warner.

Sidelighnt

HOUSTON, Tex., June 28.

Leaning on his cane and smiling broadly, the white-pated Bill Hood, one of the few remaining slaves of an old South, with a red rose in his lapel, beamed as he was given a permit to the national Democratic session today.

"Yes, suh, yes, suh, ah'm a Smith man—yes, suh. I've got to stick to the party," he grinned. "Bill was a bodyguard for the late Gen. John B. Hood in the Civil war. He was one of the two negroes who went from Houston to Arkansas to attend the confederate veterans' reunion when it met in the spring.

Mrs. Josephine McGowan, of Canton delegate at large, was honored by appointment to membership of the committee to escort Senator Robinson to the platform when he assumed his duties as permanent chairman.

Harry Taylor, Portsmouth delegate, who led the fight in the caucus Wednesday against Ohio switching to Governor Smith announced last night that he has changed his mind and will support Smith.

"I'm not a Gibson girl, I'm a Gibson grandmother now," said Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, wife of the famous illustrator, who is proud of her three grandchildren. "And I'm glad I don't look like a grandmother, too," Mrs. Gibson declared. "I've been married for 30 years, and I'm still a Gibson girl at heart."

Mrs. Gibson takes her place daily with the New York delegation which is waiting to cast its votes for Al Smith.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was again wearing the famous orchid when she came on the platform Wednesday just before noon. She wore a summery gown of white voile with black figure and big black hat of shiny straw and pearls.

She sat beside Mrs. Jesse Jones, who was attired in an elaborate model of deep violet crepe with matching straw hat. Her shoulder corsage was of orchids.

Mrs. Alfred E. Smith was kept busy for half an hour after the session got under way greeting visitors to her box. She looked cool and rested and she wore a sport frock of white crepe with dainty colored embroidery and small white hat. She carried a green fan, a sheaf of opera programs, and wore green costume jewelry.

In the same box were Mrs. Jean Glynn, sister of the governor, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Quillman, representatives of the Smith family, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, Jr. The younger Mrs. Smith wore a simple frock of figured crepe with wide-brimmed tan hat. Mrs. Quillman, who sat with her husband behind her mother, was in yellow crepe with close-fitting white hat.

A REMINDER

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the late President, is in Houston for the Democratic national convention and serves to remind the party of its glorious past. She is shown with Jesse Jones, sponsor of the Houston meeting.

Here's Convention Program For Today; Anything To Happen

HOUSTON, TEXAS, June 28.—The convention program for today follows:

10:30 a. m.—Convention meets to hear more nominating speeches. Platform committee may report interrupting speeches, or may delay its report to this afternoon.

There is no set program beyond this, the convention being free to determine its course after the speeches and platform are out of the way.

22 KILLED WHEN EXCURSION TRAIN STRIKES FREIGHT

Impact of Two Trains Terrific; Passengers Trapped in Shattered Cars.

DARLINGTON, England, June 28.—A swiftly moving excursion train, carrying 200 passengers many of whom were women, collided head on early today with a freight train at the South Darlington station and the death toll thus far is 22.

Five of those killed were women and there were 10 persons in hospitals, some in very serious condition.

The impact of the two trains was terrific. One witness said that the "force of the collision was so great that the engine was tossed across the line, while the other engine slid on its side. Three coaches of the excursion train were telegraphed.

The collision occurred at the South Darlington station, where the excursion train was passing a freight train. The freight train was carrying a large quantity of coal, and the collision caused a large fire to break out.

The fire was quickly extinguished, but the damage to the trains was extensive. The excursion train was completely wrecked, and the freight train was also damaged.

HODGES LIKELY TO BE SUCCESSOR FOR HUBERT WORK

Work Expected To Resign As Secretary of Interior When He Visits Cal.

SUPERIOR, Wis., June 28.—William V. Hodges of Denver, retiring Republican national committee treasurer, is mentioned here as the probable successor of Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior.

Secretary Work is expected to hand his resignation to the President when he visits Cedar Island Lodge, the summer White House, next week preparatory to assuming his new post as chairman of the Republican national committee, which entails supervision of the Hoover-Curtis campaign.

Hodges' regularity as a straight party man was said to be his outstanding asset for the cabinet post. In Colorado state politics, as well as in the national political field, Hodges has taken a prominent part. Having virtually his entire time to Republican interests, he was said to be a natural successor to Work.

Hodges is a member of the President's board of advisors, and has been put on the party's welfare committee. He is also a member of the Senate's committee on the Hoover-Curtis campaign.

Hodges is a member of the Senate's committee on the Hoover-Curtis campaign.

LANCASTER PAIR GIVEN $100 FINES

LANCASTER, Pa., June 28.—A Lancaster couple were fined $100 each for violating the city's ordinance against leaving their cars in the street for more than 24 hours. The couple, who were named in the city court records, were fined for leaving their cars in the street for more than 24 hours.

CONVENTION PREPARED TO NAME SMITH

Drafters of Platform In Continuous Session For Over Nine Hours Preparing 3,500 Word Document—Expect Big Session Today and Tonight.

CONVENTION HALL, HOUSTON, Tex., June 27.—The Democrats in national convention opened their third session today, eagerly awaiting the time when Governor Smith, New York, shall be named presidential candidate.

They swarmed into convention hall under a blanket of humidity to choose Senator Joseph Robinson—the probable vice-presidential nominee—as permanent chairman and to hear from him a new message on important issues of the coming campaign.

HOUSTON, Texas, June 28.—A law enforcement plank on prohibition and a strong farm relief plank acceptable to farm organizations were adopted by the Democratic convention drafting committee in an all-night secret session which broke up at 7:30 A. M. today.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, Tammany representative on the drafting committee, said the prohibition plank was entirely acceptable to him but Governor Dan Moody of Texas, young-dry leader, was undecided after the session as to whether he would sign the report.

Moody indicated he was not entirely pleased with the plank but other members of the committee said they did not expect Moody to file a minority report and thus carry his fight to the floor.

The entire platform, about 3,500 words in length, was completed by the sub-committee and was reported to the full committee at 9 A. M. The drafters were in continuous session for nine hours and 40 minutes since 9 P. M. yesterday.

The prohibition plank mentioned the 18th amendment but not the Volstead act. It pledged strict observance of the constitution.

The Republican platform mentioned the 18th amendment in a similar way and was considered the strongest prohibition stand taken by either of the two major parties thus far.

"Personally, I am a wet," said Senator Wagner after the meeting. "This plank provides for law enforcement and I am, of course, strong for that. They had a plank that I voted for."

Senator Caraway of Arkansas and Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, expressed the opinion that there would be no minority report.

Senator Pitt of Nevada, declared he was satisfied with the entire platform.

Concerning farm relief, one committee member said the agricultural plank agreed upon by the sub-committee is word for word all that the farm societies asked the Democratic party to give them. It does not mention any specific relief measure by name.

The platform also will contain a long declaration of principles relating to foreign relations. Special declarations regarding the relations in which the United States should stand to Nicaragua, Mexico and other countries of the world also are incorporated.

A plank was adopted pledging the party to further legislation for construction of the proposed Boulder Canyon dam in the Colorado river.

The committee selected the corruption in government issue as the dominant point for the coming campaign. It mentioned the oil scandals and the contributions received by the Republican party from Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome. The committee promised that the coming campaign would be conducted on a moderate financial scale.

There was little friction in the drafting committee, which began its work in an eighth floor office of the downtown Democratic building shortly after 9 p. m. When the 12 members filed out, weary eyed and haggard at 6:30 a. m., they were all smiles. Moody, the boy Bryan, led the fight for the dries. He demanded what he called "absolute prohibition" and he was not convinced after the meeting that he had received all he had sought. If the full committee upholds the drafting committee as is to be expected Moody has the right, as a member, to file a minority report and thus carry his fight for even a stronger plank to the floor of the convention.

By CARL D. GROAT

United Press Staff Correspondent
CONVENTION HALL, HOUSTON, Tex., June 28.—Democrats, their tempers frayed by heat, bad elevator service, high prices and political differences, convened in Sam Houston coliseum again this forenoon to listen to more nominating speeches. They already had their big show in the demonstration following the nominating speech for Gov. Alfred E. Smith last night, and they were prepared to ratify that nomination as soon as possible. The routine had to be gone through with, however, and this, too, in an atmosphere of fight.

There had been several intra-delegation outbursts in yesterday's day and night meetings which required police to quell. More might come today. If these are not physical, they can at least be verbal.

The general thought was that the convention would clear away the nominating speeches and then listen to the platform. It was anticipated that attacks from the floor from dissatisfied minority folk like Moody—men with political battles at home that require them to make a "last ditch" stand for home consumption—would occupy several hours. The convention, however, was in a mood to dispose of Moody and others, and adopt a dry plank calling for strong law enforcement. Such a plank is agreeable to the moderate dries and wets.

The only set order of business for the convention, assembling at 10:30 A. M., was to clean up the nominating and seconding speeches which were dropped last night when after a spectacular Smith demonstration and some rows inside the Mississippi delegation, the convention adjourned at 11:15 P. M.

The nominating speeches remaining were: For Senator James Reed, of Missouri—Charles M. Howell, of (Continued on page five)

REPUBLICANS OF OHIO ARE IN SESSION

Candidates For Governor and U. S. Senator Occupy Attention Today.

COLUMBUS, June 28.—Candidates for governor and for U. S. senator were to occupy the major attention of the Republican state convention here today at the opening session of the delegates at Memorial hall.

The three leading contenders for the governorship nomination, Atty. Gen. Edward C. Turner, Congressman James T. Begg and Myers Y. Cooper, are to deliver thirty-minute addresses after the convening of the convention at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Following the governorship candidates, the contenders for the nomination for short term as U. S. senator, are scheduled for short speeches.

Departing from the usual custom, there will be no "keynote" speech, the candidates for nomination taking the place of the party "key note."

The chief work of the convention, adoption of the party's state platform and the selection of its 24 candidates for president electors, will be accomplished at the concluding session Friday morning.

District delegations will hold caucuses and select their candidates for electors this afternoon, prior to the opening of the convention. The district selections will be confirmed and two electors-at-large chosen Friday by the convention as a whole.

Turner's platform is expected to meet vigorous opposition because of planks it contains relative to prohibition enforcement, outlawing of paid lobbyists, repeal of the peace law, limiting of campaign expenditures, abolishment of township offices and tax classification.

Fred W. Warner, Marion, chairman of the Republican state central committee, will preside at the opening of the convention as temporary chairman. Col. William H. Duffy, Columbus, will be secretary, and Tiffin Gilmore, Columbus, sergeant-at-arms.

Republican men's Glee club will sing at today's convention session and the Women's Glee club at Friday morning's session.

Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs, unopposed for re-nomination for the regular term as senator, is the only scheduled speaker at the Friday morning session.

The convention is expected to end by noon Friday.

That Circleville has one of the highest water rates, if not the highest, in the state of Ohio, is evident from the following table of rates:

City	Rate Per 1000 Gal.	Dec. 31, 1919.	Dec. 31, 1922	Dec. 1925

A REMINDER

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the late President, is in Houston for the Democratic national convention and serves to remind the party of its glorious past. She is shown with Jesse Jones, sponsor of the Houston meeting.

Here's Convention Program For Today; Anything To Happen

HOUSTON, TEXAS, June 28.—The convention program for today follows:

10:30 a. m.—Convention meets to hear more nominating speeches. Platform committee may report interrupting speeches, or may delay oits report to this afternoon.

There is no set program beyond this, the convention being free to determine its course after the speeches and platform are out of the way.

22 KILLED WHEN EXCURSION TRAIN STRIKES FREIGHT

Impact of Two Trains Terrific; Passengers Trapped in Shattered Cars.

DARLINGTON, England, June 28.—A swiftly moving excursion train, carrying 200 passengers many of whom were women, collided head on early today with a freight train at the South Darlington station and the death toll thus far is 22.

Five of those killed were women and there were 40 persons in hospitals, some in very serious condition.

The impact of the two trains was terrific. One witness said that the "force of the collision was so great that one engine was tossed across the line while the other somersaulted." Three coaches of the excursion train were telescoped.

There were most pitiful scenes. The collision occurred shortly after midnight at a darkened spot along the roadway. The crash of the two trains soon was followed by many screams from the passengers, injured and trapped within the shattered cars of the excursion train.

Rescue crews quickly were mobilized and, working by lantern light, had to chop their way through the tangled and broken cars to reach the victims. Some of those injured and killed were horribly mutilated and identification was most difficult.

HODGES LIKELY TO BE SUCCESSOR FOR HUBERT WORK

Work Expected To Resign As Secretary of Interior When He Visits Cal.

SUPERIOR, Wis., June 28.—William V. Hodges of Denver, retiring Republican national committee treasurer, is mentioned here as the probable successor of Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior.

Secretary Work is expected to hand his resignation to the President when he visits Cedar Island Lodge, the summer White House, next week preparatory to assuming his new post as chairman of the Republican national committee, which entails supervision of the Hoover-Curtis campaign.

Hodges regularly as a straight party man was said to be his outstanding asset for the cabinet post. In Colorado state politics, as well as in the national political field, Hodges has taken a prominent part, devoting virtually his entire time to Republican interests. Advocates of his appointment have emphasized the President's desire to reward those who have put the party's welfare above self interests, and Hodges was listed as one of the dominant figures in that class.

Hodges is a friend of Dr. Work and during the last campaign was close to William M. Butler, retiring chairman of the national committee. He recently turned over to J. R. Nutt, his successor, the financial records and memoranda of the national committee.

LANCASTER PAIR GIVEN $100 FINES

Albert Ramsey and J. A. Arnett of Lancaster, the first charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, and the other with possession of intoxicating liquor, were found guilty as charged and each given a fine of $100 and costs by Judge Adkins in Probate court Wednesday.

They are to stand committed to jail until both fine and costs are paid.

CONVENTION PREPARED TO NAME SMITH

Drafters of Platform In Continuous Session For Over Nine Hours Preparing 3,500 Word Document—Expect Big Session Today and Tonight.

CONVENTION HALL, HOUSTON, Tex., June 27.—The Democrats in national convention opened their third session today, eagerly awaiting the time when Governor Smith, New York, shall be named presidential candidate.

They swarmed into convention hall under a blanket of humidity to choose Senator Joseph Robinson—the probable vice-presidential nominee—as permanent chairman and to hear from him a new message on important issues of the coming campaign.

HOUSTON, Texas, June 28.—A law enforcement plank on prohibition and a strong farm relief plank acceptable to farm organizations were adopted by the Democratic convention drafting committee in an all-night secret session which broke up at 7:30 A. M. today.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, Tammany representative on the drafting committee, said the prohibition plank was entirely acceptable to him but Governor Dan Moody of Texas, young dry leader, was undecided after the session as to whether he would sign the report.

Moody indicated he was not entirely pleased with the plank but other members of the committee said they did not expect Moody to file a minority report and thus carry his fight to the floor.

The entire platform, about 3,500 words in length, was completed by the sub-committee and was reported to the full committee at 9 A. M. The drafters were in continuous session for nine hours and 40 minutes since 9 P. M. yesterday.

The prohibition plank mentioned the 18th amendment but not the Volstead act. It pledged strict observance of the constitution.

The Republican platform mentioned the 18th amendment in a similar way and was considered the strongest prohibition stand taken by either of the two major parties thus far.

"Personally, I am a wet," said Senator Wagner after the meeting. "This plank provides for law enforcement and I am, of course, strong for that. They had a plank that I voted for."

Senator Caraway of Arkansas and Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, expressed the opinion that there would be no minority report.

Senator Pitt of Nevada, declared he was satisfied with the entire platform.

Concerning farm relief, one committee member said the agricultural plank agreed upon by the sub-committee is word for word all that the farm societies asked the Democratic party to give them. It does not mention any specific relief measure by name.

The platform also will contain a long declaration of principles relating to foreign relations. Special declarations regarding the relations in which the United States should stand to Nicaragua, Mexico and other countries of the world also are incorporated.

A plank was adopted pledging the party to further legislation for construction of the proposed Boulder Canyon dam in the Colorado river.

The committee selected the corruption in government issue as the dominant point for the coming campaign. It mentioned the oil scandals and the contributions received by the Republican party from Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome. The committee promised that the coming campaign would be conducted on a moderate financial scale.

There was little friction in the drafting committee which began its work in an eighth floor office of the down town Democratic building shortly after 9 p. m. When the 12 members fled out, weary eyed and haggard at 6:30

a. m., they were all smiles.

Moody, the boy Bryan, led the fight for the drys. He demanded what he called "absolute prohibition" and he was not convinced after the meeting that he had received all he had sought.

If the full committee upholds the drafting committee as is to be expected Moody has the right, as a member, to file a minority report and thus carry his fight for even a stronger plank to the floor of the convention.

By CARL D. GROAT

United Press Staff Correspondent CONVENTION HALL, HOUSTON, Tex., June 28.—Democrats, their tempers frayed by heat, had elevator service, high prices and political differences, convened in Sam Houston coliseum again this forenoon to listen to more nominating speeches. They already had their big show in the demonstration following the nominating speech for Gov. Alfred E. Smith last night, and they were prepared to ratify that nomination as soon as possible. The routine had to be gone through with, however, and this, too, in an atmosphere of fight.

There had been several intra-delegation outbursts in yesterday's day and night meetings which required police to quell. More might come today. If these are not physical, they can at least be verbal.

The general thought was that the convention would clear away the nominating speeches and then listen to the platform. It was anticipated that attacks from the floor from dissatisfied minority folk like Moody—men with political battles at home that require them to make a "last ditch" stand for home consumption—would occupy several hours. The convention, however, was in a mood to dispose of Moody and others, and adopt a dry plank calling for strong law enforcement. Such a plank is agreeable to the moderate drys and wets.

The only set order of business for the convention, assembling at 10:30 A. M., was to clean up the nominating and seconding speeches which were dropped last night when, after a spectacular Smith demonstration and some rows inside the Mississippi delegation, the convention adjourned at 11:15 P. M.

The nominating speeches remaining were: For Senator James Reed, of Missouri—Charles M. Howell, of

RISKO WINS DECISION OF JUDGES OVER GODFREY

CLEVELANDER HAS EDGE BUT THAT IS ALL

But There Were Few Dissenting Voices In Crowd of 27,849.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

United Press Staff Correspondent
EBBETS FIELD, BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 28.—The heavyweight division was without a "black menace" today for the first time in years.

George Godfrey, 235-pound Alabama negro, went the way of Harry Wills last night, as he lost the judges' decision to Johnny Risko of Cleveland, in a 10-round bout, staged in the same ring at Ebbets Field in which Wills was defeated by Jack Sharkey two years ago.

Godfrey, however, was not as completely eliminated from consideration as was Wills, who felled Sharkey in the thirteenth round to avoid a knockout. Risko's margin of victory was slight. There were few dissenting voices, however, in the crowd of 27,849 spectators.

A whirlwind body attack in the last three rounds won the decision for Risko. Towering over Risko like a black Goliath, Godfrey punched the Cleveland boy around the ring during the larger part of the first five rounds.

The tide of the battle shifted after the fifth round, Risko opening up a fierce body attack which Godfrey, even with his superior strength and longer arms, was unable to stave off.

Risko had little success hammering at Godfrey's jaw in the early rounds because of the negro's excessive height. He shifted his attack to the body in the late rounds, and carried four of the last five almost solely on these wallops to the mid-riff.

Godfrey weakened after the fifth round and attempted to clinch and hold at every opportunity. Risko seemed to get his second wind in the sixth round, and from that point on did his best fighting.

There were no knockdowns, and neither man was ever in danger of a knockout. Godfrey almost threw Risko to the canvas several times when he wrestled and cuffed him in the clinches.

Risko won in spite of the fact that every physical advantage was against him. He conceded Godfrey 44 1-2 pounds in weight, 5 1-2 inches in height and 5 inches in reach. Risko weighed 190 1-2.

Risko has a busy campaign in front of him, having already signed to meet Roberto Roberti, the Italian giant, in July, and Paulino Uzcudun in August. If victorious in both these fights, he will be matched with Jack Sharkey in September.

Godfrey will leave for Spain soon to fight Paulino in a return bout at Barcelona some time in August.

CHAMPIONSHIP AFFAIR.

Jimmy Slattery, a favorite of the fates who weave the destiny of fisticuffs, despite the many times he has disappointed mere mortals at the ringside.

It is rare indeed that a logical contender who all but tips over the champion of his class is given two chances within six months to win the title. If Tommy Loughran put any faith in the old saying about a pitcher going once too often to the well, he would not be meeting Jimmy Slattery in another fight for the light heavyweight championship in Madison Square Garden tonight.

In this same ring, less than six months ago, the Philadelphia had all he could do to get past the nimble Buffalo boy. Since that time, however, Loughran has shown no disposition to shrink his sworn duty as a champion, for he has met and beaten the toughest opposition in the 175-pound division. Leo Lomski, Joe Sekyra and Pete Latzo were engaged and successively defeated by Tommy. Now the titleholder is back again for another dose of Slattery's patent leather medicine.

Shade Upset Him

Jimmy Slattery looked every inch the coming champion several years ago, until a lantern jawed young man named Dave Shade bobbed up from nowhere and flattened him painfully and unexpectedly one summer night at the Polo Grounds.

Paul Berlenbach and Young Strubling then took turns in administering sound beatings to the Buffalo boy. For a long time, it seemed as though Slattery had definitely renounced his fistic pretensions in favor of easy living, punctuated with periodical visits to police courts for violation of the speed laws.

But Jimmy had within him too much real promise as fighter to turn his back definitely upon the ring, he staged a comeback comparable to that of Rabbit Maraville and other notorious misbehaviorists and became once more one of the popular and dangerous contenders for the light heavyweight championship.

Sock Market Bearish

In his previous meeting with Loughran at Madison Square Garden, Slattery carried the champion along at a dizzy clip, and there were many at the ringside who thought he deserved no less than a draw. There are at least as many who believe that the Buffalo boy may win the title tonight. The Loughran-Slattery bout, incidentally, marks a definite admission on the part of Tex Rickard that the fight business is not paying well this year. The match originally was scheduled

The promoter dragged it in the possibility of a large, lucrative attendance, since the ball park will seat more than 70,000 and Madison Square Garden less than 20,000. "It might rain," explained Rickard, which gives the fistic fraternity a belly laugh. The idea of Rickard, whose luck in the matter of weather has come to be proverbial, fearing postponement because of rain is ludicrous.

What the promoter really had in mind was that Madison Square Garden undoubtedly will hold the crowd which cares to pay to see the bout. By holding it in his own arena, he saves the ten percent he would have to pay Col. Jake Ruppert for use of Yankee Stadium. When Rickard re-trenches in this fashion, it is emphatic proof that the sock market has suffered a decline.

TOMMY LOUGHRAN TO MEET EMANUEL

NEW YORK, June 28.—Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, will meet Armand Emanuel, Jewish lawyer from San Francisco, in a ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Loughran is rated generally as a three to one favorite over Emanuel, who won a decision over Mike McTigue in his first appearance in the east.

The title will not be at stake, Emanuel weighing more than the 175 pound lightweight limit.

George Hoffman, National amateur champion, will desert his amateur standing tonight and make his first professional appearance. He will meet Vinko Jakasa, heavyweight champion of Czechoslovakia, in a four-round bout.

RISKO WINS DECISION OF JUDGES OVER GODFREY

TRANS-ATLANTIC PLANES DAMAGED

MONTREAL, QUE., June 28 — The Trans-Atlantic airplane, North Star, in which Fraulein Thea Rasche hopes to fly to Germany, was slightly damaged today when the German girl attempted to take off from Cap De La Madeleine for Newfoundland, an official of the Fairchild Aviation company at Grand Mere, Que., informed the United States Press by telephone.

The aviation official said the German girl and her crew hoped to complete repairs immediately and perhaps make a second attempt to take off this afternoon.

Baseball

YESTERDAY'S HERO: Taft, Boston Red Sox right fielder, who hit safely five times out of as many trips to the plate.

The Boston Red Sox celebrated their return home by winning a double header from the Washington Senators 4 to 1 and 11 to 4.

The New York Yankees increased their American League lead to 11 full games by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics 7 to 4.

The only National League game yesterday saw the New York Giants beat the Phillies for the fourth straight time 11 to 8.

WILLIAMSPORT

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hill and daughter, Helen Hill, arrived home on Monday evening after a visit of several days with friends in Indiana and Illinois. Mrs. Wilba Hunsicker of Columbus remained at the Hill home during their absence.

Mr. Lem T. Hurst of Columbus, and formerly of Williamsport was a visitor here Tuesday.

Mr. John Hunsicker returned home on Monday afternoon after spending a few days at Magnetic Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Baker and Mr. and Mrs. George Lemay were guests at a "shower" honoring a bride-elect of Chillicothe, on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Roy J. Boots was called to Williamsport Monday by the sudden illness of his father, Mr. Stephen Boots. Mr. Boots is now much improved, however.

Mrs. N. J. Trego and son, C. S. Trego, and Mrs. Norvel McNeal attended the funeral of a relative at Lancaster Wednesday afternoon.

ST. LOUIS GOLF VET FAVORITE TO WIN

DES MOINES, IA., June 28 — With Johnny Goodman of Omaha, Neb., last year's champion, eliminated from the trans-Mississippi golf tournament, Jimmy Manion, St. Louis veteran, was favored today to win the 1928 title.

Manion, also former champion defeated E. J. Rogers of Oklahoma City, 6 and 5, yesterday's round. The defeat of Goodman and Paul Jackson, 18-year-old Kansas City youth, left Manion the only titleholder in the race.

FIVE DROWNED, MANY ENTOMBED IN SLIDE

TOKIO, June 28 — Five persons were drowned and 26 others reported entombed by a landslide as result of heavy rains near Hiroshima and Kyushu.

There have been heavy rains and floods throughout the nation this month—the regular rainy season—and considerable damage from high water. Bridges roads were out and rice fields were flooded.

RACKETEER KINGS ARE BLAMED FOR MURPHY SLAYING

Labor Leader Tried To Usurp
Their Power and Met His Fate, O'Connor Says.

CHICAGO, June 28.—A ring of powerful racketeer kings, whose place Big Tim Murphy had tried to usurp, were accused by Deputy Police Commissioner O'Connor today as the killers of the Chicago labor leader.

Ten of them, who dominate the cleaning and dyeing industry in Chicago and whose immense profits have been the envy of rival racketeers, were sought by the police. Commissioner O'Connor announced he believed the murder had been solved.

Big Tim, who was shot to death in front of his home Tuesday night, has been connected definitely with a coup to overthrow the ten leaders, it was said.

Two of the ten, Frank Noonan and James Forsyth, will be booked for murder as soon as they are found, the commissioner asserted, and similar charges will be placed against John Hand who was arrested yesterday, and a fourth man, whose name was not revealed.

Hand, a close friend of Noonan and Forsyth, admitted having a revolver in his room which had been fired a short time before his arrest.

GOES UP 20,000 FEET IN SEAPLANE

PHILADELPHIA, June 28 — Lieut. Arthur Gavin in the navy's seaplane PN-12 No. 2 was believed today to have set another seaplane record for altitude.

He piloted the plane to an estimated 20,000 feet while carrying a "useful" load of 1,000 kilograms. The present record, made in Switzerland, is slightly over 19,000 feet.

The record will have to be checked officially.

OLD PHILIPPINE PLANK

HOUSTON, June 28 — The Democratic platform will contain the same declaration regarding Philippine independence as was contained in the 1924 platform, according to one member of the platform sub-committee who engaged in the session of the drafting body which ended at 6:30 this morning.

HOOVER TO OPEN WESTERN DRIVE

CHICAGO, June 28 — Herbert Hoover's western campaign headquarters will be opened in Chicago in late July or August, according to James W. Good, the Republican candidate's pre-convention manager. Good arrived here yesterday from Washington, where he conferred with Hoover.

Good will be in charge of the office, which will be headquarters for all the state west of Pennsylvania. Rep. Walter Newton, of Minnesota, will head the midwestern speakers' bureau here, Good said.

KING IN ENGLAND

LONDON, June 28 — King Alfonso of Spain, arrived today for a visit in England.

The visiting sovereign was accompanied by the Duke of Miranda.

CAPT. COURTNEY STARTS FLIGHT

HORTA, AZORES ISLANDS, June 28 — Capt. Frank T. Courtney, flying here from Lisbon on the way to New York, radioed at noon today: "We are well on the way and going strong. We expect to arrive about 2 p. m."

LISBON, SPAIN, June 28 — Captain Frank Courtney, English flyer, started again today on an attempt to fly across the Atlantic with one stop at Horta in the Azores Islands. He took-off in his British flying boat at 8 a. m.

Yesterday Courtney started on the flight but two hours out of Lisbon was forced to return when mechanical difficulties developed and when he also encountered stiff head winds.

Last year Courtney started on a similar Trans-Atlantic flight from Plymouth, England, but was forced down in Spain.

WEATHER BETTER, PLAN ARCTIC HUNT?

KINGS BAY, SPITZBERGEN, June 28 — Slowly clearing skies through the great Arctic area today brought hope that search might start soon for 21 lost explorers.

Three days of unfavorable weather have prevented flights over the frozen Arctic wastes where three separate parties are lost and where one party awaits rescue.

Fears grew hourly that part of this group of 21—nine men in two parties—might never be heard from.

Six were in the dirigible Italia when it sailed away, a victim of the winds, after two gondolas had been smashed and one man killed. One group of nine men was left on the ice with their shattered gondola.

INDEPENDENTS IN ELECTION AHEAD

BISMARCK, Md., June 28.—Independent candidates assumed the lead in the first returns of the North Dakota primary elections today.

First precinct reports gave R. A. Nestos, independent candidate for the nomination for United States senator on the Republican ticket, a majority over Lynn J. Frazier, non-Partisan candidate. George T. Schofer, independent candidate for the nomination for the nomination for governor, was leading by three to one over T. H. Thorson, non-Partisan.

Early returns on the proposal to remove the prohibition clause from the state constitution showed a small majority in favor of retaining the clause.

BIBLE THOUGHT

OUR SAFETY—The name of the Lord is a strong tower; the righteous runneth into it, and is safe.—Prov. 18:10.

PRAYER—Rock of ages, cleft for me, Let me hide myself in Thee.

WOMEN IN BUSINESS

A survey of the business world would indicate that many more women have gone in for business enterprises than before the World war. Certain lines of trade particularly appeal to them. Many of them for years have conducted millinery and dressmaking establishments. Beauty parlors constitute a favorite opening.

Many are running restaurants and lunch rooms. Many are conducting stores for sale of women's clothing. The complete list of the kinds of establishments run by women in a good sized city would usually be a long one.

Women have certain qualities that fit them specially for many lines of business. They have artistic taste, they commonly have a keen sense of courtesy, which is a tremendous factor, and they understand the kind of thing needed for supplies for the homes. These are important assets helping them on to success.

Then if they can thoroughly understand their lines and run their places in a systematic way, and attract attention to their service by advertising, their chances should be good.

A great many women seem disinclined to accept the old conception that their place is in the home and they should stay in it. They look for a more creative career. They see themselves able to handle big social and civic affairs. They can run off a big church supper with the smoothness of clockwork. They naturally argue that they ought to be able to win in the business field. They do not like the idea of a subordinate of inferior place, and more and more they will be striking out on their own lines wherever they see an opportunity. The men are glad to see them succeed.

A THOUGHT ABOUT FARMERS

The American farmer has not been enjoying the extreme peak of prosperity in recent years. That fact has surely been drummed home during the last few months. Yet one is tempted to wonder, sometimes, whether the American farmer is not, after all, considerably better off than the farmers of other lands.

The Gleaner Combine Harvester Corp., of Independence, Mo., recently sent a solid train of 125 cars, all loaded with combine harvesters, to dealers in the Nebraska cities of Sidney, Ogallala and Chappell. The entire shipment was worth considerably more than $200,000.

Farmers abroad may be doing very well. But they at least aren't buying $200,000 loads of farm machinery at one time.

WEDDING PRESENTS

With the weddings of flowery June, come the wedding presents. They are an offering piously given by the close friends of the wedded pair. But if invitations are sent too indiscriminately, the receipt of that swell engraved card is sometimes referred to as a hold-up.

But it is a beautiful custom, and it says to these young folks starting on a new life enterprise, that the hearts of their friends go with them, and sympathize with all that destiny shall bring them of joy or sorrow.

People should be sincere in making these gifts, and it is not up to them to give more than they can afford. But the people who are married or expect to be, can well consider that they have benefited or will benefit by this custom, so they would better pass along the favor to new families coming on into the community here in Circleville.

SHE WANTS TO GO

Discontented thus
I go
Looking for a crop
To sow

For some thing
That I can do
Before this short
Life is through,
And when I'm about
To quit,
All ambition bound
To flit,
Then a friend
Comes 'round to smile,
Making all the world
Soon I find
Words of vigor,
Worth-while,
That Life after all
Is kind—
And what we mean to say
Is,

When you've traveled
To the end
There you, too, will Find a friend
Waiting to encourage
You
When your thoughts
Are pretty blue,
What would all
Your travels be,
What is there in Life
To see,
Why walk on around
The bend—
Isn't it for just
Some friend?

SYNOPSIS
A satchel containing $200,000 has been stolen from the Mercer National Bank. The police suspect the professor, leader of a gang of rooks, of being involved. His headquarters, an antique shop, is constantly watched. The Professor believes that lovely Rose Shannon, a cabaret dancer, knows where the money is hidden. He assigns Chuck White, one of his gangsters, to invite her to the country to visit Chuck's supposed "aunt." He hopes Rose will give herself away during her stay. Chuck, more and more attracted to Rose and learning that the Professor is on his way down, finally asks her outright whether she stole the money.

Rose looked up at the man before her, staring wide-eyed, unbelieving. For a moment she felt as though the entire world were swimming about her. Then she laughed—a short, strained laugh. Surely, he must be joking—he couldn't believe that she had anything to do with that robbery. And yet his face was tense in its seriousness. His eyes refused to meet hers.

"Oh, Chuck! Don't—don't joke that way. Why I—" her voice trailed off into a miserable silence. The flowers dropped from her trembling hands. She caught at her throat, as though to choke back that pain that was rising from her heart. Her breath came quick and fast.

"Now listen, honey," Chuck finally looked at the girl. "I ain't blaming you, even if you did. You see, I—"

He couldn't finish. That frightened, haunted look on her face, that innocent expression, suddenly made him realize, if he never had before realized it, that Rose was telling the truth.

"Oh, Chuck!" The wailing moan escaped her lips.

"Rose, sweetheart! Listen!" Chuck was catching at her arm, trying to plead his case.

"He tried to take the girl's hand, but her sobbing only came more wildly.

"No—don't—don't! Go away!" she wailed, gasping between the short, sharp intakes of breath that almost stifled her.

"Rose, honey! Please listen to me," he begged. "I didn't mean it. Honest I didn't. I know you didn't have nothing to do with all that money. Rose, please don't cry like that."

But Rose only sobbed the harder, her body shaking and trembling like a leaf in the wind.

"Rose, listen!" Chuck caught her by the shoulders, forcing her to look at him. "Look here, honey. I'm sorry—damn sorry. Honest I am. Please believe me. I just been a fool, that's all."

The sobs were dying away now; little, whimpering moans caught in her throat. At last she raised her head and looked at Chuck. And suddenly there was a gladness in her heart. For his eyes were misty; his expression was one of penitence, humility, and for the first time it was unassumed.

"Chuck, dear, why did you say those terrible things to me?" Rose's voice was shaky, but she put her arms about his neck and kissed him.

"Aw, I don't know, Rose," Chuck murmured, his arms closing tightly about the girl. "I'm just nuts, I guess. I don't know nothing. I'm just a sap. Aw, Rose, tell me you forgive me. I'm so crazy about you I can't see straight."

"That's all right, Chuck—it's all my own fault."

They stood there together, clinging to each other, until the sound of a ringing bell came to their ears. Molly calling them to supper. Slowly they turned, and started down the path.

All over, Chuck thought. Not yet. There was still the evening ahead of them. But no matter what happened now, he knew that there was one thing he was going to do, and that was to keep an impending danger from Rose. They could do anything to him they liked, but he loved this girl as he had never loved anyone else in his life, and no one was going to harm her. He'd get them both out of this whole mess, somehow, and they'd start all over again. And this time it wouldn't be on easy pickins'.

CHAPTER XIV
Supper at the old stone house was a somewhat strained affair. Rose was inclined to silence, still feeling the effects of the, to her, terrible error of the afternoon. Molly kept planning from the girl to Chuck, sensing that something had happened, but not being able to fathom the cause. She made every effort, every opportunity, to get Chuck away so that she could question him. But he had refused to be left alone with her.

Chuck, for his part, knew that Molly was looking at him questioningly, suspiciously, even, but he intended to do no talking to her. There would be time enough for that when the Professor arrived.

His mind was active with half-formed plans, none of which seemed especially useful.

Supper over, Chuck drew Rose in to the living room and closed the door behind them. "Listen, sweet heart," he began, his voice low and earnest. "Whatever happens, I love you. Remember that, see Don't let no one tell you different."

"Why, Chuck! What do you mean? You look so—so sort of funny." Rose stared at him, a puzzled frown between her eyes.

"Aw, nothing. Forget it, kid." Chuck tried to smile, but it was an unsuccessful attempt. "Nothing's gonna happen. Only just remember that."

His words were interrupted by Molly who came on into the room drawing off her gingham apron. "Well, why don't cha play some thin', dearie," she turned to Rose attempting to assume her usual kindly manner.

"If you don't mind, Aunt Molly," Rose responded, "I'd rather not. I feel so tired." She sat down in a rocking chair in front of the fire and swayed back and forth quietly.

Chuck paced about the room restlessly, now watching Rose, now Molly. His air of perturbation seemed to spread; a tense silence hung over the room. Molly pretended to read, but her book was upside down, and from beneath her narrowed lids she watched closely for any sign that she thought might pass between the boy and the girl.

Then from below came the clatter of rumbling wheels on the road way. A patter of horse's hoofs beat on the hard dirt bed. Molly jumped to her feet, the book fell to the floor with a resounding bang. She hurried to the door with a muffled exclamation and threw it open.

"There's someone comin'!" she flung back over her shoulder.

But Chuck was already beside her, scanning the driver, patting his arm about her, as though to draw her out of harm's way. His grip tightened as the thump and rattle of horse and wagon came nearer and nearer. Molly seized a lamp from the table and held it up anxiously to glimpse the callers.

And then around the bend in the road came a four-seated buggy, a lean horse straining at its load. In the glow of the lamp the three standing in the doorway could make out the tall figure of the Professor, sitting in front with Molly who was holding the reins. In the rear sat Sparrow and Lefty, bouncing up and down as the rig jolted over the ruts.

"Oh, it's your Uncle Chuck," Rose began to laugh, patting the boy's arm happily. "Oh, I'm so glad." For to Rose, the coming of this man meant that all was well.

"Well, well, this is indeed a treat. How are you, Molly, dear?" The Professor kissed his "sisters' cheek. "And Rose! I'm glad to see you again, my dear." He bent his head and kissed the girl gently on the forehead. "And Chuck!" He shook hands with the boy. "Come on in." He beckoned for his companions, who were lingering in the back yard.

The three men came forward somewhat hesitatingly, and then amid a general shower of greetings and salutations, Molly led them into the big living room, Rose clinging to the Professor's arm.

"I'm so glad to see you again, Professor," Rose was smiling up at the tall man beside her.

"Thank you, my dear, thank you," the Professor patted Rose's hand. "But you haven't met my very dear friend, Dr. Conner-Randolph Cowper—have you? Doctor, this is Miss Shannon, a very nice girl, friend of my nephew's."

"Rose, honey! Please listen to me," he begged. "I didn't mean it. Honest I didn't. I know you didn't have nothing to do with all that, honey. Rose, please don't cry like that."

But Rose only sobbed the harder, her body shaking and trembling like a leaf in the wind.

"Rose, listen!" Chuck caught her by the shoulders, forcing her to look at him. "Look here, honey, I'm sorry—damn sorry. Honest I am. Please believe me. I just been a fool, that's all."

The sobs were dying away now; little, whimpering moans caught in her throat. At last she raised her head and looked at Chuck. And suddenly there was a gladness in her heart. For his eyes were misty; his expression was one of penitence and humility, and for the first time it was unassumed.

"Chuck, dear, why did you say those terrible things to me?" Rose's voice was shaky, but she put her arms about his neck and kissed him.

"Aw, I don't know, Rose," Chuck murmured, his arms closing tightly about the girl. "I'm just nuts, I guess. I don't know nothing. I'm just a sap. Aw, Rose, tell me you forgive me. I'm so crazy about you I can't see straight."

"That's all right, Chuck—it's all over anyhow."

They stood there together, clinging to each other, until the sound of a ringing bell came to their ears. Molly calling them to supper. Slowly they turned, and started down the path.

All over, Chuck thought. Not yet. There was still the evening ahead of them. But no matter what happened now, he knew that there was one thing he was going to do, and that was to keep an impending danger from Rose. They could do anything to him they liked, but he loved this girl as he had never loved anyone else in his life, and no one was going to harm her. He'd get them both out of this whole mess, somehow, and they'd start all over again. And this time it wouldn't be on easy pickin's.

CHAPTER XIV

Supper at the old stone house was a somewhat strained affair. Rose was inclined to silence, still feeling the effects of the, to her, terrible event of the afternoon. Molly kept glancing from the girl to Chuck, sensing that something had happened, but not being able to fathom the cause. She made every effort, every opportunity, to get Chuck away so that she could question him. But he had refused to be left alone with her.

Chuck, for his part, knew that Molly was looking at him questioningly, suspiciously, even, but he intended to do no talking to her. There would be time enough for that when the professor arrived. His mind was active with half-formed plans, none of which seemed especially useful.

Supper over, Chuck drew Rose in to the living room and closed the door behind them. "Listen, sweet heart," he began, his voice low and earnest. "Whatever happens, I love you. Remember that, see? Don't let no one tell you different."

"Why, Chuck! What do you mean? You look so—so sort of funny," Rose stared at him, a puzzled frown between her eyes.

"Aw, nothing. Forget it, kid," Chuck tried to smile, but it was an unsuccessful attempt. "Nothing's gonna happen. Only just remember that—"

His words were interrupted by Molly who came on into the room drawing off her gingham apron. "Well, why don't you play some thing, daddy?" she turned to Rose attempting to assume her usual kindly manner.

"If you don't mind, Aunt Molly," Rose responded, "I'd rather not. I feel so tired." She sat down in a rocking chair in front of the fire and swayed back and forth quietly.

Chuck paced about the room restlessly, now watching Rose, now Molly. His air of perturbation seemed to spread; a tense silence hung over the room. Molly pretended to read, but her book was upside down, and from beneath her narrowed lids she watched closely for any sign that she thought might pass between the boy and the girl.

Then from below came the clatter of rumbling wheels on the road way. A patter of horse's hoofs beat on the hard dirt bed. Molly jumped to her feet; the book fell to the floor with a resounding bang. She hurried to the door with a muffled exclamation and threw it open.

"There's someone comin'," she flung back over her shoulder.

But Chuck was already beside her, scanning the drive. Rose with her arm about her, as though to draw her out of harm's way. His grip tightened as the thump and rattle of horse and wagon came nearer and nearer. Molly seized a lamp from the table and held it up anxiously to glimpse the callers.

And then around the bend in the road came a four-seated buggy, a lean horse straining at its load. In the glow of the lamp the three standing in the doorway could make out the tall figure of the professor, sitting in front with Mug who was holding the reins. In the rear sat Sparrow and Lefty, bouncing up and down as the rig jolted over the ruts.

"Oh, it's your Uncle, Chuck!" Rose began to laugh, patting the boy's arm happily. "Oh, I'm so glad!" For Rose, the coming of this man meant that all was well.

"Well, well, this is indeed a treat. How are you, Molly, dear?" The professor kissed his "sisters' cheek. "And Rose! I'm glad to see you again, my dear. He bent his head and kissed the girl gently on the forehead. And Chuck—" He shook hands with the boy. "Come on in." He beckoned for his companions, who were lingering in the background.

The three men came forward somewhat hesitatingly, and then amid a general shower of greetings and salutations, Molly led them into the big living room, Rose clinging to the professor's arm.

"I'm so glad to see you again, Professor," Rose was smiling up at the tall man beside her.

"Thank you, my dear, thank you," The professor patted Rose's hand. "But you haven't met my very dear friend, Dr. Cowper—Randolph Cowper—have you? Doctor, this is Miss Shannon, a very dear little friend of mine—and of my nephew." He introduced Lefty (To be continued)

"Rose, honey! Please listen to me."

ing you, even if you did. You see, I couldn't finish. That frightened, haunted look on her face, that innocent expression, suddenly made him realize, if he never had before realized it, that Rose was telling the truth.

"Oh, Chuck!" The wailing moan escaped her lips.

"Rose, sweetheart! Listen! Chuck was catching at her arm, trying to plead his case.

"Rose!" He tried to take the girl's hand, but her sobbing only came more wildly.

"No—don't—don't! Go 'way!" she wailed, gasping between the short, sharp intakes of breath that almost stifled her.

"Rose, honey! Please listen to me," he begged. "I didn't mean it. Honest I didn't. I know you didn't have nothing to do with all that, honey. Rose, please don't cry like that."

But Rose only sobbed the harder, her body shaking and trembling like a leaf in the wind.

SOCIETY

CLOTHING CLUB MEETS AT HOSLER'S

The Monroe Champion Clothing club held their third regular meeting June 26, at Mrs. Hosler's. The president being absent the meeting was called to order by the vice president, Marjorie Arbogast. The meeting opened by singing "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," followed by scripture reading and the Lord's Prayer. The roll call and the minutes of the last meeting were read by the assistant secretary, Donna Smith. Twelve members responded to roll call by telling the name and author of a book they had read. Frances Arbogast, the chairman of the program committee furnished a very interesting program. It began by two piano solos by a visitor, Iva Mae Hosler, of Columbus. The penny collection was 12 cents. This is taken up at every meeting to cover the expenses which the club might have. Each member brought their lunch along as their plans were to go on a fishing party, but were disappointed on account of the weather. There were six visitors. The club welcomed Glendal Dick as a member at this meeting. The club will hold its next meeting July 10, at Miss Hosler's. Mildred Liston, Reporter.

SMITH PRESENTED

Kansas City, former associate and lifelong friend of the senator.

For former Senator Gilbert Hitchcock, of Nebraska—Eugene D. O'Sullivan.

For representative Cordell Hull, of Tennessee—Harvey H. Hannah, of Roan County, Tennessee.

For Jesse Jones, of Houston, millionaire, who brought the convention here—nominator undecided.

Gov. Moody was originally picked. At the last moment his labors on the platform committee made it uncertain if he could undertake the task.

Then they were also seconding speeches for Smith still hanging fire. These were:

Wisconsin—George A. Jagerson. Massachusetts—Andrew J. Peters.

Maryland—Gov. Albert Ritchie. Minnesota—Andrew Nelson. Connecticut—Miss Carr.

Smith's name was placed in nomination last night by Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, the partly crippled former assistant secretary of the navy.

"We offer one who has the will to win—who not only deserves success, but commands it," Roosevelt said in concluding. "Victory is this habit—the happy warrior."

Then a blazing demonstration started. Before it had run its course in the next 26 minutes, an outburst inside the Mississippi delegation had required police intervention, and it appeared for one or two tense minutes as though the fight might spread to other quarters of the sweltering floor.

In the first place, Mike Morrissey, of Mississippi, and Senator Stephens clashed. Morrissey, a Smith sympathizer, insisted Stephens let the Mississippi placard in the procession for placard.

The senator refused, and they grappled. Policemen stationed throughout the hall by assistant Chief Kuykendall were quickly on the job, and rushed Morrissey who was crying "Hooray for Al Smith," from the building.

Witnesses said the senator clutched at Morrissey's throat, and that Morrissey swung at the senator.

A little later several young men, Mississippi alternates, marched by the regular Mississippi delegates' section in the Smith wave of singing and shouting marchers.

Mrs. F. C. Hathorne, with the aid of her husband and other members of the delegation, challenged the right of the alternates to have the Mississippi stand in the Smith parade.

A general turmoil inside the Mississippi section followed.

It looked like a football scrimmage. The police intervened. They separated the fighters, and then the nominating speeches continued.

The convention heard a speech for Evans Woollen, of Indiana, by William H. O'Brien, of Lawrenceburg. His tabloid version pleased after some of the long distance oratory. Others placed in nomination were Senator George, of Georgia, by Representative Charles R. Crisp, of Georgia, and Representative W. A. Ayres, of Kansas, by George McGill, of Wichita, Kas.

Seconding speeches were made for Gov. Smith thus:

Wyoming—Former Gov. Nellie Taylor Ross, an attractive picture behind her huge bouquet of roses.

California—Thomas Hickey. Kentucky—A. W. Barkley, who is mentioned as a running mate for Smith, though Senator Joseph Robinson, of Arkansas, is generally "doped" as the likely choice for the vice-presidency.

Louisiana—Mrs. Stella Hamlin, probably the prettiest woman the convention has seen on the platform.

The demonstration for Smith, aroused by the Roosevelt speech, was colorful and noisy. But for the Mississippi sideshow, it would have been described as a huge success.

A large man bearing a California banner with a picture of Smith thereon, leaped down the middle aisle in what appeared to be a smashing line buck for 20 yards. He was up before the speaker's platform and away to a flying start.

A few seconds later, state standards were piling in behind him, marching around the hall. The New York delegation, with the "wise-cracking mayor," Jimmy Walker, and other Tammany folk in it, stood by, pleased. Some southern delegations stood aloof.

SOCIETY

CLOTHING CLUB MEETS AT HOSLER'S

The Monroe Champion Clothing club held their third regular meeting June 26, at Mrs. Hosler's.

The president being absent the meeting was called to order by the vice president, Marjorie Arbogast. The meeting opened by singing "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," followed by scripture reading and the Lord's Prayer.

The roll call and the minutes of the last meeting were read by the assistant secretary, Donna Smith. Twelve members responded to roll call by telling the name and address of a book they had read.

Frances Arbogast, the chairman of the program committee furnished a very interesting program. It began by two piano solos by a visitor, Iva Mae Hosler, of Columbus.

The penny collection was 12 cents. This is taken up at every meeting to cover the expenses which the club might have.

Each member brought their lunch along as their plans were to go on a fishing party, but were disappointed on account of the weather.

There were six visitors. The club welcomed Glendal Dick as a member at this meeting.

The club will hold its next meeting July 10, at Miss Hosler's.
